Explore two Detroit Icons and enjoy a step on guided tour of Detroit with Detroit City Tours. The first stop will be the Guardian Building. Originally called Union Trust Building, it was completed in 1929. The Guardian Building in Detroit is a National Historic Landmark, renowned for its stunning Art Deco architecture and distinctive orange brickwork. You will be given a short highlights tour of this building before the step on guided tour of the City. The other stop on this tour takes us to The Fisher Building, an Art Deco skyscraper designed by Albert Kahn and completed in 1928, is a National Historic Landmark in Detroit's New Center district. Known as the "Golden Tower" for its original gold-leaf-faced tiles, the building features a grand, marble-clad barrel-vaulted lobby and elaborate artwork.
